

Supplementary Section (a)

This section tests the suitability of your political leanings. Fill it in if you have answered yes or no to question 9 of the previous section

1. Does art replace ritual?

Yes No

Ritual may now be known as idiosyncrasies, that is, what used to be public displays of "private" thoughts in a conventional forum. However, in placing a contemporary definition of the term ritual, its meaning may have been slightly obscured, just as is the case with art. Some people call it an arcane pursuit. Like petanque.

2. In your opinion have all forms of art been exhausted?

Yes No

If you think you know the answer to this question, proceed to the next question

Hint: Some people seem to think so.

Lately, there has been a disonnance of forms, a dis of the sonance of the forms. Breakability, where there is a permeable membrane to allow boats to cross to and fro.

What follows is cultural readership (a term which will never be explained) where a lot of major and minor narratives are discussed, in this case, the "silent story never gets told".

Supplementary Section (b)

This section is to determine your will or drive to, and motivations to make art.

1. What is your story? Include specific details of events that have influenced your life.

Please identify if they are random events by ticking in the appropriate boxes..

The form consists of a large rectangular area with a light pink background. It is divided into several horizontal sections by dashed lines. On the left side, there is a vertical column of checkboxes. The first checkbox is checked. The form is designed for writing a story, with the instruction to include specific details of events that have influenced the respondent's life. The checkboxes are intended for identifying random events.

2. Why do you want to make art?

- I don't know.
- For beauty? Suspension of the ideal illusion?
- For ideas — a message?
- Esoteric investigations into the nature and abstract workings of art?

Please supply proof of this statement in the form of an object that may or may not refer to the above.